USER OF THE TIME DESK IN INTERVIEW

How do you like to work on-site? We have asked doctoral candidates using a Time Desk of the Graduate Center about benefits and disadvantages.

Hanna Brommer:
"... The second advantage is, of course, that I'm able to distinguish between private and job-related. I'm not sitting at home, on my couch, and see my overloaded desk and think: You have to work. Instead I come here, close the door and start... “

Sven Hammann:
"... I like it very much, because there aren't any distractions. I need a working space where I can go and begin to work... When I go home, I can call it a day... “

Manja Kürschner:
"... The university library is a stone throw away, really close by, and whenever I need some new books or a coffee or a chat with someone, I can just go there and then come back here and work. The second advantage is that I get all the free e-books, e-journals, papers available on the campus....“

THE TIME DESK
You are working on a doctoral thesis and need to be near your department and/or the library for a limited period of time? Or you live in another city and need a temporary working space at Kiel University? Are you in the final phase of your doctorate, finishing a publication or evaluating material and need therefore a temporary work place? Do you need a temporary office on the campus for other reasons?
